Mother Helpage Worldwide being world's one of a few humanitarian organisations having a fully developed department for disaster response which deals with the emergency and relief work through a set professional procedures. Mother Helpage's disaster response department not only comprises of professionals and skilled volunteers but the latest machinery in terms of helicopters, small planes, sea boats etc.

Our approach to the emergencies is that we are ready for any disaster throughout the year with regular relief exercises, fundraising for the emergencies and the plans of operation in hand. Our professional crew, our air and sea rescue units and the volunteers are alert 24/7 for any kind of emergency.

Our approach to the emergencies carries a vast difference from others, as not only we respond to the emergencies instantly and with a professional manner but we have introduced an academic aspect to the emergencies where we aware people about the disasters, the warning signs, coping up with the disasters and survival procedures during the acute phases of emergencies. We have started an awareness programme throughout the world in which we organise seminars, community gatherings, or debates in schools or universities to aware people about the disasters and the methods of survival.
